Course Review Date: Fall 2018

By its nature, Philosophy encourages diverse approaches to teaching, and so it is to be expected that different programs and different instructors can approach an Ethics course in very different ways. Consequently, a broad consensus on details of content is not to be expected. However, students will become familiar with the basic concepts and methods of moral philosophy, their application to specific moral problems, and aspects of the rich history of moral philosophy as chosen by their particular instructors. Students will:

1. Recognize the significance of moral philosophy in a broader context.
 - A. Students will show familiarity with the philosophical development of various normative ethical theories.
 - B. Students will recognize key characteristics of philosophical inquiry such as its emphasis on careful reasoning and analysis and how it differs from other kinds of inquiry.
 - C. Students will apply moral theories to ethical problems.

2. Identify and explain basic ethical theories, terminology and concepts.
 - A. Students will demonstrate an understanding of major normative ethical theories, schools of thought, or problems within ethics as chosen by the instructor. Examples might include deontology, utilitarianism, virtue ethics or moral objectivity.
 - B. Students will explain key ethical terms as understood within ethical theories (examples might include good, rights, duty or happiness.) or as applied to ethical problems such as the permissibility of abortion, capital punishment, our duties to animals, etc.

3. Identify and develop in writing philosophical analyses and arguments based on philosophical reasoning and provide cogent reasons in support of competing philosophical claims.

4. Evaluate in writing philosophical arguments and texts focusing on moral theories and problems, and state alternative points of view by, providing their own positions supported by cogent arguments.
